FRUIT SALAD.

A fruit salad made of fresh and canned fruits is made as follows: Strawberries, oranges, bananas, canned pears, canned white cherries and pineapple. Slice them into cubes, drain and chill. Serve on lettuce leaves with a dressing made by mixing 1-2 cupful of strained honey, 1-4 cupful of lemon juice and 1-2 teaspoon of gelatin softened with 1-4 cupful of cold water. Beat well to incorporate the honey thoroughly and fold in 1 1-2 cupsful of whipped

One-half spoonful is measured lengthwise of the spoon.

Stains on tinware or teacups can be removed by dipping a damp cloth in common soda and rub-bing briskly. Wash and wipe dry.

Head lettuce leaves may be removed without breaking by first cutting around the core with a knife and then holding the head of lettuce under running water.

Onions, held under water while being peeled, will not make you weep because the fumes are thus prevented from rising.

To remove finger marks on a highly polished piano, wipe with a cloth wet in pure cold water, then wipe dry. This restores the new look at once.

To clean egg stains from spoo first rub them with a little salt, then wash them in soap and water and dry with a soft cloth.

An excellent sandwich filling is tuna fish mixed with parsley. lemon juice, seasoning and a bit

To make Melba toast, cut bread in one-eighth-inch slices and toast until it is crisp.

Mock almonds, used for soup, are merely croutons shaped like almonds. Dates, figs and raisins give variety to fruit salads.

"Cafe au lait" merely means "coffee with milk," while "cafe noir" means "black coffee."

GEORGE DECIDES AGAINST MEASURE

Had Indicated He Would Introduce Amendment Barring Cotton Subsidy Money.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,

WASHINGTON, May 11.—After considering the matter of proposed legislation to ban the use of government funds to pay an export bounty on cotton, Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, today said nah Beach Sunday night. he would not introduce an amendment to the pending agricultural appropriation bill, to bar the use of Department of Agriculture money for payment of an exportsubsidy.

He had previously indicated that he might press for the adoption of such an amendment, but after winning his fight yesterday to de-feat the Bankhead amendment which would have frozen the 11,500,000 bales now held in the government's cotton pool, Senator George decided to proceed no fur-ther along this line for the pres-

When the senate defeated a moion by Senator Bankhead yesterday to suspend the rules and vote on the merits of his amendment, Senator George, along with Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, was given credit for leading the opposition. Senator George spoke for nearly two hours against suspending the rules, as-serting that if cotton was to be subsidized it should be subsidized in the interest of domestic and not foreign buyers.

He joined other southern senators, including Bilbo, of Mississippi; Byrd, of Virginia; Harrison, of Mississippi; McKellar, of Tennessee, and others, in preventing the upper chamber from registerte on the am itself, which all oppositionists claimed was legislation on an appropriation bill and therefore out of order.

VOTE SLATED TODAY

fiscal year.

Leaders obtained an agreement to convene the chamber at 11 a. m. omorrow, an hour earlier than usual, to expedite consideration of the explosive measure which has provoked a series of bitter floor fights. Decision to speed action came after a series of un-scheduled and extraneous speeches

Should the senate approve its bill, it will have to be returned to the house for adjustment of diferences before it can go to the White House. The house previ-ously had refused to vote farm price subsidies, when considering the issue. Whether it will now recede is conjectural.

REA FUNDS ALLOTTED. Measures introduced today included a resolution by Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, to confer jurisdiction on the court of claims of the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia to hear the claims of Mrs. J. W. Marks, of Stephens county, Georgia, for property taken by the government.

REVISION OF TAXES

Observing 48th Birthday, He Calls for Changes to Encourage Business.

WASHINGTON, May 11.-(P)-Secretary Morgenthau nailed tax revision fast to the treasury's policy mast today against the blasts of skeptical reports which have blown steadily through administration corridors since the program was announced in February.

Firmly and seriously, in the midst of gaiety over his 48th birthday which occurred today, he told reporters he still favors modification of any taxes which are deterring business. When one reporter asked whether President Roosevelt had virtually forbidden him to offer the program to congress, he said:

gress, ne said:
"That's ridiculous. We're living under a democracy, thank God."
Back again in the holiday mood, he showed the newsmen an em-ploye's birthday gift of an ash tray decorated with a bull and the legend "Does it contribute to recovery?" This slogan was coined by Morgenthau himself a few months ago to describe his atti-tude toward any proposals that come before him.

IT'S ALL WHISKEY 4 YEARS OR MORE OLD

DO YOU KNOW

- Aging improves a good whiskey, but it can't make a poor whiskey good. So all the whiskies that go into Four Roses are outstandingly good to start with.
- 2 All of them are at least 4 years old-old enough to be bottled in bond. And they would be bottled in bond, if we thought they would be as good, sold separately that way.
- 3 But our 74 years' experience has taught us that the finest whiskey is made by combining several of our whiskies into one whiskey that's finer still.
- Then we purposely make Four Roses lighter and milder, by reducing it to 90 proof (instead of the stronger 100 proof which bottled-in-bond whiskies must be).

5 Four Roses is ALL whiskey—with the mellowness of age, and the greatness that only generations of distilling skill can give. Compare it with any other whiskey made.

MERGER SAVINGS CITED BY GOSNEL

"An expert has estimated that as the population of a county falls below 50,000 per capita costs of its government increase. There are only six counties in Georgia that have 50,000 or more people each. These counties are Bibb, Chatham, DeKalb, Fulton, Muscogee and Richmond. There are several with ridiculously small populations, For instance, Echols has 2,744 people, Dawson 3,502, Quitman 3,820 and Dade 4,146. Nine counties have less than 5,000 people each. Fulton county with a population of 336,788 has more people than the 49 smallest counties put together.

"Many people have contended that the large counties of Georgia have the highest tax rates, but the facts fail to show this. The small counties have both the highest and the lowest.

"President Roosevelt has said that our American counties were made for the 'ox-cart' days. In the early days counties had to be small as travel was slow. Even 25 years ago, what with bad roads and slow means of travel, it took all day for a person to travel from his home to his county seat 12 or 14 miles away, transact a little business, and return home. Nowadays one can travel the same distance in 15 or 20 minutes. Truly Georgia counties were made for the 'ox-cart' days. The smallest county in the state, Clarke, has an area of only 114 square miles. "In 1930 Mr. Ivan Allen, of Atlanta, a very able student of government, prepared a plan for county consolidation in Georgia. His plan called for merging all of the 161 (there were 161 at that time) counties into 41. He pointed out that the cost of county government in Georgia was $22,000,-000 annually and estimated that his merger plan would cut this figure in half. The writer believes that Mr. Allen is a little too op-timistic, but considerable savings could be effected by such a plan. Savings would probably amount to 20-25 per cent allowing for better and more efficient county services. Professor Lloyd Raisty's report on the Financial Statistics of Local Government was $26,231,104.27 for 1936. Handling of Farm Problem Not as Popular as Other Measures Carried Out by New Deal. Copyright, 1930, by American Institute

NEW YORK, May 11.-With a joint committee of the senate and house hammering out new legislation for the nation's farmers, a survey of public opinion finds that American voters are about evenly divided on whether the Roosevelt job or a poor job in handling the farm problem thus far.

For more than six years the ad-ministration has wrestled with

To determine the ublic's general attitude toward he farm program, which is almost year, the American Institute of ublic Opinion interviewed a ross-section of voters throughout the nation, both on farms and in owns and cities, asking this ques-

The agricultural program has been one of the most controversial close division of sentiment in the survey reflects this controversy. In contrast to such New Deal pro-grams as the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Social Security Act, and the reciprocal trade treaty program—all of which have been found overwhelmingly indorsed by voters in Institute surveys—the farm program is apparently not among the more popular measures of the Roosevelt administration.

Even among farmers in the south and middle west, where the bulk of the nation's farms are located, the agricultural program is favored by only a slight majority. Nearly all of these farmers are affected directly or indirectly by the program, and their opinions on what the government has done divide as follows:

The chief objection raised by voters throughout the nation is that the program of crop restricthat the program of crop restriction and surplus control has met with only a "limited success."

Many voters also say they object on principle to "paying farmers for not producing," while others, chiefly those living in cities, declare that the farm program is "too expensive for the rest of us."

Those voters who, on the other hand, think the administration has done a good job with the farm problem argue that the farmers.

problem argue that the farmers are much better off today than they were when President Roose velt came to power in 1933. "Many farmers were saved from foreclosure and ruin," runs one typical comment. Reforestation, soil conservation and dust control were also singled out for praise by groups of voters.

The survey found that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Walface is personally popular with a majority of voters despite the even division of sentiment on the ad-ministration's farm program. With political commentators sometimes mentioning Wallace for the presidency in 1940, the Institute asked voters throughout the nation:

"Do you think Henry A. Wallace has done a good job as secretary of agriculture?"

The most typical comments made by voters in answering this question were that "he's doing his best under handicaps," and that while some parts of the agricultural program are "bad," Wallace has been "a good administrator." The farmers in the southern and midwestern area divide about the same as the nation, 55 per cent saying they think Wallace has done a good job, while 45 per cent

T happens like this. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are window shopping. Mr. Jones needs clothes. Bond's display catches their eye. Says Mr. Jones, "These look like expensive suits." Says the Mrs., "They do, but just look at those prices". So in they go, both thinking "how come so much for so little?". And the salesman tells how all Bond Clothes are made in Bond's own plants. And how this keeps Bond prices down by cutting out third-party profits. Which is something very few clothiers can say. Mr. Jones likes the way the clothes fit. Mrs. Jones recognizes superior woolen quality. The salesman flashes that extra pair of trousers - at no extra cost. And it's all over. Mr. Jones tells his friends, and they tell theirs. This has been going on for 31 years. Do you wonder more men wear Bond Clothes than any other clothes in America? Even more important, they keep on repeating year after year. Just as you will, after your first taste of Bond's "champagne quality" at club soda prices. How about starting today or tomorrow?

Not Surprising

There need be no surprise at the resolution, opposing county mergers, adopted by the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia. By the very nature of the positions they hold, they hold, no other attitude could be expected.

Yet, these same officers are as patriotic and intelligent a group of Georgians as could be gathered together. They are men who have given much to the service, not only of their own counties, but of the state and they are men in closest possible touch with the problems of local government.

Nevertheless it is true that a drastic reduction in the number of counties of Georgia would, in the final analysis, prove inestimably valuable to the state and would effect large economies of the people's money.

Too, with fewer courties, it would be possible to ultimately achieve a reduction in the unwieldy size of the legislature, one of the big stumbling blocks in the effort to secure modern and progressive laws for the state and its

It seems, at first glance, anomalous that the county officers of the state should be so widely at variance, in their views, with the great majority of the finest students of local government, on the county merger issue. It must be remembered, however, that these county commissioners must, by the very nature of their responsibilities, view problems from the circumscribed interests of the individual county they represented. It is but natural, therefore, that their views on this issue should become distorted. It is a form of political astigmatism, induced by excess use of the near sight. It remains true, however, despite their resolution, that Georgia is burdened with an expensive and costly system when the state i ped up into 159 separate county units.

It is estimated that, by merging these 159 counties into 40, an annual saving of $11,000,000 could be made for the taxpayers of Georgia. Even though such savings should amount to only half this sum, it would be well worth while.

The time is coming, perhaps slowly, when Georgians all will sink their local viewpoints for the good of the state as a whole. When that time does come, it will be possible to do away with many of the handicaps of today, not the least of which is the fantastic jigsaw of 159 counties.

Herbert Porter

Herbert Porter, publisher of The Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, died yesterday afternoon in a New York hospital. He had undergone an operation there.

Thus is ended the final chapter in the life of a man whose career was marked by distinguished success in his chosen profession and by untiring civic service to the city he had made his home. He was recognized throughout the newspaper world as an outstanding executive and his keen business sagacity was a byword among all who knew him.

But it was as a man and a friend that Herbert Porter was best known. His warm humanness, his unfailing kindness and his gentle personality made him a man beloved by all who knew him. His friendship was a thing to value, yet it was a possession open to all.

The newspaper world of Atlanta has suffered a severe loss in the death of Mr. Porter. That loss is felt not only by his direct associates but by the entire personnel of the three papers.

To the staff and executives of the paper whose destiny he directed The Constitution and all its staff extends sincerest sympathies and the realization that they must most keenly feel a loss that is, nevertheless, shared by all.

Methodist Unity

Unification of the three great branches of the Methodist Church in the United States was finally and formally achieved, last Wednesday, at Kansas City. In ceremonies of solemn dignity, yet with impressive simplicity, the union was consummated.

There are some who, for reasons they deem excellent, opposed this union. Now, however, it is an accomplished fact and as such it is to be hoped it will be accepted by every member of the faith.

With the broad principle of a united church there can be no objection. Despite all arguments, it remains plainest logic that the church founded upon the teachings of Jesus Christ should be one. He came to bring Christian brotherhood to mankind, not schism and rivalry. He came to preach tolerance and love, not dispute.

No man of vision can doubt that when the day of Millennium dawns at last there will be but one church, with all men brothers in Christ, devoted to His ideals and living together in the warmth of His universal love. There can be no divided church in a world that has accepted the teachings of Christ in their full glory.

The union of the three great divisions of Methodism in America is a step towards the consummation of this ideal that is to be. It is, therefore, a step in the right direction and one which all sincere and true Christians will welcome in that spirit.

Christian unity is in accord with the teachings of Christ. It cannot, therefore, be wrong.

National Cotton Week

Although the economic forces of the nation are more or less divided in opinion as to a solution of the cotton problem, there is no disagreeing that the problem should be solved as promptly as possible.

So cotton men, from the farmer who grows cotton to the man at the retail counter who sells it in the form of beautiful goods, and all those in between, have united as one to bring about the best organized sales event vet launched in the United States during National Cotton Week, May 22-27.

The National Cotton Council, the Cotton Textile Institute, the Cotton Consumption Council, the National Retail Dry Goods Association and the Wholesale Dry Goods Association have united their efforts to make the drive for business a success. The National Association of Food Chains, with 37,000 stores, will dramatize the effort for their 10,000,000 daily customers. The drug chains will do likewise.

Cotton Week, this year, offers an unusual opportunity to the people not only to help solve the difficult cotton problem, which, after all, is a vital Georgia problem, but to bring benefits to themselves by taking advantage of the many complete selections of goods and patterns on sale in the stores.

Every year it seems the manufacturers of cotton goods make more beautiful, more attractive materials. Every year the people are becoming more aware of this and are buying more. Cotton Week should stimulate this buying, should do much to help solve the cotton prob-

For Constitution Sunday

The preamble to the Constitution of the United States begins with the words "We, the people"-not any particular class or kind of people. It was not for the rich, nor for the poor, nor for the in-betweeners, but for all the people-equally-that justice, domestic tranquillity and the blessings of liberty were intended and have been provided.

It seems altogether fitting, therefore, that one Sunday during each year should be designated as a day set aside for the purpose of thoughtfully appraising this great document. What has it meant in the life of a free nation which has just reached its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary?

In carrying out this thought the following joint resolution has been introduced in the senate and house of representatives:

Resolved, that the Sunday immediately preceding September 17 of each year is hereby designated and shall hereafter be known as Constitution Sunday, to be held in grateful remembrance for the privileges enjoyed under the Constitution of the United States and the President is authorized and requested issue annually a proclamation calling upon the people to observe such Constitution Sunday in an appropriate manner.

A presidential proclamation, calling the attention of the people of the United States to the principles of government under which they live, to the privileges they enjoy from year to year, ought to be unnecessary. But the inclination, sometimes, is to forget in the every-day routine of life that these rules of living can be maintained, have been maintained throughout the years, only by constant vigilance.

There is no indication that human relations have become so idealistic that "We the people" can relax in the thought that they need no longer be watchful. A yearly reminder should serve a good purpose.

WRONG USE OF THE LAW (From the Detroit News.)
The public's attention should be called to move on the part of a number of businesses and professions to limit competition by means of laws restricting or prohibiting advertising.

A half-dozen such proposed laws have been introduced at Lansing. In other states the movement has got so much farther that its anti-social implications have become exceedingly evident. From the prohibition of advertising, this tenreadily extends itself to other devices by which politically dominant groups in a particusiness may invoke the legislative power to cripple competitors and competition.

The tendency toward prohibitory legislation referred to is broadly destructive of that active empetition on which the public depends for protection against unfair prices and inferior quality the goods and services it buys. Honest advertising is essential to healthful competition. Dishonest advertising is another matter, but one adequately dealt with in an existing law that penalizes severely whatever is "untrue, deceptive or misleading."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GERMANY AND MATERIALS WASHINGTON, May 11,-Germany's fighting power is one of the two or three really vital factors in the world situation. It becomes more important daily as the world stumbles nearer and nearer to war. And, therefore, although the question is bitterly disputed, it seems worth while to present the best available expert conjectures on the strength of the German military machine.

A machine is no stronger than its weakest part, and the weakest part in the German military machine is obviously the small domestic supply of raw materials. Hitler's air fleets are ready to rain death on the great towns. His millions of men are under arms. His fortifications are complete along the Rhine. But, if his enemies survive the horror from the air, how long can he feed his people, arm his forces, and transport his troops? In fact, how far have the Germans succeeded in their struggle for self-containment?

The answer, as currently given by men best qualified to speak, seems to be that the effort has been far more successful than is generally supposed. The German war plans are an amazing gamble on the national efficiency, but experts no longer predict off-hand that the gamble must fail.

OIL AND STEEL Until a few years ago, for example, motor fuel was the basic war material in which Germany was most deficient. But the Nazi state, caring nothing for ordinary economic considerations, has managed to step up do-mestic production of motor fuels at an astounding rate. The estimates for this year's output are: Crude oil from the few German wells, 700,000 tons; gasoline produced by cracking German brown coal, 1,700,000 tons; benzol, 600,000 tons, and alcohol distilled from potatoes and used in some German motor engines, 200,000 tons.

Even Germans must eat, so there has been no attempt to increase production of the potato alcohol. But the total increase of this year's motor fuel production over last year's amounts to 600,-000 tons, that of the gasoline from brown coal alone having risen by 400,000 tons. Meanwhile, there are reports, not yet confirmed, of the discovery of important oil wells near Halasz in southern the discovery of important oil wells near Halasz, in Hungary. These wells would, of course, contribute to total German

In steel production, too, much is being achieved. The current German domestic steel output is 18,000,000 tons, to make which the German steel mills now require 15,500,000 tons of scrap iron and domestically mined iron ore, 10,000,000 tons of Swedish ore, and 10,000,000 tons of ore imported from other sources. The supplies of scrap are running low and, while the German war plans are founded on the assumption that the Swedish ore supplies will continue available, the other imports will become impossible. But huge new plants are being constructed near Brunswick in Germany and Linz in Austria for steel making by the so-called brassart acid process. brassart process refines ores previously thought too low grade for use, and Germany has ample mines capable of producing ores of this type.

THE WAR DEDICATION Except with respect to copper and fats, which Germany cannot produce and must store up, the story is the same all along the line. Each type of production is being speeded up. Every speed-up is a sacrifice. The buna, or synthetic rubber, which Germany manufactures. factures is far more expensive than real rubber on the world market. The gasoline cracked from brown coal is more expensive than gasoline refined from imported crude. And so it goes.

Some of the new types of production have yet to be tested, moreover. The new steel plants are not in operation, and some experts predict that they will fail. But in this prediction, as in so many others about Germany, there appears to be the old confusion. It would be cheaper for Germany to rely on imported ore, but the Reich is an all-powerful state, dedicated only to war. Under the circumstances, the state is willing to pay for steel from domestic ores, however costly. And so one can believe the stories that have recently reached Washington of Vienna's treasure of baroque ironwork being melted into scrap. In a war-dedicated state, every com-mon value of humankind is forgotten in the vast preparation for True, But NEW YORK, May Not Effective Said that Red baiters exaggerate the menace of Communism in this country, be-cause the Communists pool a small vote and because there are, prac tically speaking, none of them in the communities between the seaboards, which are made up of na tive Americans. These arguments are true, but they defeat their own purpose, because no group so small and unrepresentative of native American sentiment deserves the disproportionate influence which Communists possess in the nation al government.

If the Communists are as weal in numbers as they angrily insist they are it is a betrayal of the Americans who did elect the New Deal to permit any of them to hold influential positions in the govern ment. They received no indorse-ment from the voters, and the fac is that they were repudiated before the election. They have no standing than members of the Nazi anti-American bund, with whom they have everything in common administration have a duty to dis credit and repel them as vigor ously as they would a representa-tive of the Hitler sedition and sab otage.

It is, therefore, not the number of Communists, avowed and fur tive, which requires frequent re minders, but the friendly and en couraging attitude of the govern nent toward so small and treach erous a minority. The Case It is easy to believe that Mr. Ickes is not in great demand as a guest of genuinely American groups, but even that famous frugality which twice impelled him to become an illegal, semi-charity case in a government hospital while drawing $15,000 a year prequisites would not entirely explain his eagerness to tear meat with members of the Stalin conspiracy. #### ONE WORD MORE

BY RALPH McGILL.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE! There is something confusing about science. It seems always to be encouraging us to go ahead and do something we shouldn't on the basis that science can compensate.

The latest invention of an eastern scientist is a substance which will, when injected into the New Year's or Christmas celebrant, who has taken on entirely too much red-eye, make him come back to life. It also has the unusual quality of enabling the prospective celebrant to prepare. If taken before quaffing large amounts of redeye it enables the quaffer to take on larger amounts without having an urge to slap the hostess or to dance on the piano. It definitely restricts those ideas which seem so plausible at the time and so very awful the next morning.

This has all sorts of possibilities. It likely will not be welcomed by the regular consumers of red-eye because even they must admit it would be perfectly awful to keep taking it and getting no results. On the other hand there must be any number of wives who will welcome it and who will slip the substance into the first highball taken by their bread-earners. There are wives who must grow taken by their bread-earners. There are wives who mu very weary of seeing their rent-payers insist on doing a solo high-land fling at parties. Those gentle things, whose spouses always imagine themselves a combination of Rhett Butler and Clark Gable, also will welcome the new drug which, slipped into the first cock-tail, will make the old man realize that he is, after all, over 40, somewhat fat, and utterly lacking in the qualities which made

The possibilities of the new drug are endless. They also are disturbing and but one more chapter in the story.

VITAMINS ANOTHER CHAPTER Vitamins are another chapter. We may boil away all the substance from food or, in fact, not eat the right sort at all. It doesn't matter. We may replace the lost vitamins by the simple process of walking into the bathroom, taking a million or so vitamins, all done up in a pill, out of a box and swallowing them. It is often most distressing to consider what potentialities are within one of those small pills. One reads that the small pill which one holds in one hand and contemplates, is equal to a quart of orange juice, two pounds of steak, a quart of milk, six eggs and a half pound of cheese. One feels a bit guilty in swallowing so much with no effort. Also there comes a feeling of missing something. The pill has no taste. As it flows down the canal one feels that the steak might at least have tasted better. The eggs, if shirred with butter sauce, would have been a better dish.

And so it goes. We invent a killing gas for war and then a gas mask which will keep it out. It is a never-ending process-new

We invent an armor plate for battleships which keeps out shells.

Then we must invent a gun which will fire a shell with enough weight and velocity to pierce the armor. And so it goes.

CONFOUNDS EVEN ITSELF Science confounds even itself. We manage to cure most diseases with pills, operations, therapeutic lights and drugs.

Thereupon we quickly develop new nervous diseases which fill the hospitals and graves. Worry becomes more deadly than alcohol; the sound of automobile horns causes the nerves to frazzle. The citizen whose ancestors could sleep through an Indian attack with war whoops and shrieks, now has a fit if the neighbor's radio plays overtime.

gentleman whose father survived four years of Civil War battles and reconstruction, now has a son who has to go off to a mental hospital because he doesn't like the President of the United We have too many people hungry because we have too much to eat. We have too many people without adequate clothing because we have too much wool and cotton.

Science has got us somewhat confused. The latest invention is sure to add to that confusion. The time soon will come when it will be necessary to drop a pill into the cocktail along with the olive to give the cocktail a kick.

There must be a limit to all these things. Life indeed is a series of checks and balances. They can't do anything, though, about having a baby around the house. They can't supply a pill which

There is, first of all, the son's sense of duty. Obligated to support and cherish his mother, he makes no effort to find a mate and establish a new home. He is, first and last, a dutiful son.

This role is made easier for him by his mother's love and experience. She comforts and encourages and praises him, as a good wife would, and keeps his house in order. He can say, in all sincerity, that he doesn't need a wife. But he was born to love a mate and be a father, and he cannot wholly normal if his natural capacities are unused. The power of habit may bring him contentment, but middle age will find him lonely and defrauded and his heart, but middle age will find him

MY DAY A Book Every Lover It's a Woman's Duty to Look

HYDE PARK.—I have nothing to tell you today except the things which happen to everyone who has a place in the country, and who only sees the necessary work done in and out of doors and who only sees the necessary work done in occasionally.

First of all, we changed some curtains in a room which we have decided to use this summer as a work room for an extra secretary and, only in a dire emergency, as a bedroom. I am putting in a day bed which may be none too comfortable, but the guests will know that they are only expected to remain on a temporary basis. It is funny how many little things needs to be done even in a cottage, regardless of how to be done even in a cottage, regardless of how little one may live in it.

The robins look fat and prosperous, so that there must be plenty of work for them. As we drove in, I saw the loveliest black bird with red wings, and noted with sorrow that a number of Norway spruce trees, which my husband had transplanted last fall, are apparently not going to live. The soil around this little cottage is very gravelly, and everything needs constant watering. The lilacs are in bud, but not yet out, so I shall miss them, much to my sorrow, for I think they are among the love-list of spring flowers.

A week has made more difference than I imagined possible but, at that, everything is at least three weeks behind last year's spring. We put our chairs out on the lawn yesterday afternoon and sat in the sun for a little while, the first time I have indulged in that lazy occupation this year. This morning Miss Cook showed me all through her garden, and it certainly is very lovely. Protected by a wall all around, it is further advanced than anything else about

Just as I was leaving New York, my brother gave me a little book which can be read in a half an hour and which any lover of dogs should not miss. It is "Teems," the last thing which Rudyard Kipling wrote. He had a genius for writing about animals, and this little book is written in the first person, a dangerous vehicle to try unless you are an expert. Anything more charming than the story of this dog who loved "his art and his bone" has not been written in a long while.

There are no lack of things which I would like to do with my own two hands if I could stay to do them, but alas, this afternoon we must take the train back to Washington. There is no question there of having time to dig in the garden and, besides, it is not my own garden. One need never be idle in either place, however. Here my two hands could be constantly busy, in Washington my feet and mind must be kept in a welcoming condition. There one is busy with people, and here one is busy with nature.

Duty to Look Her Best

By Ida Jean Kain.

Latest controversy raging among is over whether pretty girls get ahead of homely ones in govern-ment service. And that—or, so it seems to this innocent bystander provokes further speculation as to whether pretty girls do not get ahead fastest in any career, and as to whether the term "pretty" does not mean merely attractive, which is something else, indeed! Usually it represents a woman's own han-

In this age, it is highly doubtful that very many women are getting by on their looks alone. On the other hand, a pert appearing wo-man with one chin instead of two, a trim figure and snappy, "going places" posture, probably does have the edge on her so-called homely sister, provided she has the mental equipment, too.

Truly homely women, however are about as rare as naturally pretty ones. In most instances a woman passes for homely simply she has neglected her apbecause pearance for matters that she considers more important. It is easy for the woman in a business or a ofession to do this.

Getting ahead in a career is hard work and a woman may lose sight of the fact that it is her business as a woman to look her best, that the most efficient feminine mind is more apt to be appreciated at its true worth if it comes at-tractively packaged. Then, too, if her position is secure, a woman may become so engrossed in her work that she forgets about her appearance entirely. Once I heard a school superintendent bitterly wish that one of his most brilliant staff members wouldn't sew her-self into a particularly utilitarian jersey dress for the winter!

There is no substitute for experience and the older woman knows it, and knows that the young girl cannot satisfactorily replace her. But don't pigeonho trivial such things as diet, exercise and time to shop for the clothes that do the most for you. The topnotch women executives don't! Some of the most outstandingly successful career women are extremely attractive. They are not pretty. I don't know one who is really beautiful. Honestly, I think that great beauty might very well or to comeramen. #### Males Admire Independence In Girls

By Caroline Chatfield,

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
The boy friend cared much more for me than I did for him. He talked of nothing but marriage, and finally talked me into giving up all my friends for him. A year afterwards he began to cool and before I knew it he had slid out and left me. I dashed out to find my old friends and make some new ones and was lucky but I carried a pain in my heart which was much more than hurt pride. A month ago the first love came back, said he had tried it out and nd he couldn't live without me. Again he wants me to settle down to date him only, but he doesn't say a word about marriage. Here I am in love with him, afraid of losing him, if I refuse, and afraid of losing him, if I agree. He is 28, could get married any day he chose. Now what should I do?

You Can't lose anything worth having by showing some inde-pendence and experience has shown you that you can lose everything by knuckling. Either your first love is fickle or he's a bounder and either case he's sel-fish and inconsiderate. Then why should you hesitate to tell him that as he has deserted you once in mid-ocean, leaving you to sink or swim, hereafter you will carry your own life preservers in the persons of other boy friends.

It's pretty generally true that, until a man is hooked and hooked fast, he admires a show of inde-pendence on the part of his girl friend. Remember he isn't hooked until he talks marriage. If he's in a financial jam, no job and no means of supporting a wife, his tongue is tied in the matter of alking turkey (and it should be tied in the matter of asking for a lien on a girl's life) but when he's all set and ready to go, it's a shab-by trick for him to sew up the girl friend while he makes up his weak mind.

If human nature isn't full of contradictions! Man and woman, married and single work like Turks to get their feet on one another's neck and when either succeeds the victor invariably despises the vanquished. The eighteenth century British poet Landor wrote some verses about a little girl that picked a bunch of cowslips and went down to a stream to play with them. She kept pushing them under the water and they kept bobbing up, fresh as a daisy. Finally she wore them out and when they didn't come up any wore she didn't come up any more, she went off and left them, went off to find another play-toy.

I'd like to commend that poem o all the girls who write me about their autocratic boy-friends; for human nature is the same in the eighteenth and twentieth centuies. Whether it's little girls ducking flowers, or big boys brow-beating their best girls, when there's no come-back on the part of flowers or females, the game has lost its zip and duckers and -beaters go off to find other play-toys.

Supplement Child's Diet With Calcium, Vitamin D

By Dr. William Brady.

Professor Mellanby believes that cereals contain an anti-calcifying factor and therefore holds that too much cereal in the diet is a contributing cause of rickets, defec-tive teeth, etc., a point which both of the Mellanbys (Edward and May) have established at least ex-May) have established at least experimentally and strongly upheld by observation of the nutrition of children over a period of many.

Fully two weeks ago (postcards Mrs. S. S.) I mailed a request for a certain pamphlet. To date this has not arrived. Please attend to

In this country now physicians generally prescribe a daily dose of vitamin D in one form or another for nearly every baby, as a supplement be continued throughout the development of sound eventeeth and strong bones and vigorous muscles and steady nerves.

Of course there are still many Of course there are still many thousands of young children who

if they received any vitamin D in early infancy, get little if any after the first year. This is attribu-table to the ignorance and incom-petence or indifference of physicians who have never quite grasped the scientific principles on which this modern practice is based—doctors of the old school who depend on their skill in exploiting their patrons' unsophisti-cation and, as long as they get away with it, laugh at the new-fangled ideas, with the implication that they are saving patients from that they are saving patients from squandering money on silly fads.

When a child is pot-bellied, knock-kneed, flat or weak-footed, has a "high hip" or a "low shoulder" (usually these are signs of spinal curvature, irregular or rapidly "decaying" teeth, that child needs an optimal daily ration of vitamin D and a high calcium diet.

Although it is commonly assumed that rickets is a bone disease or that softening of the bones and consequent deformities constitute the characteristic condition of rickets the truth is that rickets is a nutritional deficiency, and the muscle glands and nervous tissues suffer as much as do the

The Breakfront China Cabinet Revival

By Elizabeth Boykin.

You've been hearing a lot about the breakfront cabinet the last few seasons, though like most fine furniture designs there's nothing really new about it. It's just been rediscovered for revival because it seems to fit into our contemporary ideas of things pretty well.

For Cabinet China. Actually the term means a large pookcase or cabinet with a center section that extends further forward than the side panels. It usually has drawers below, shelves above and frequently a desk in the center section. Altogether a very useful piece of furniture. NEW YORK, May 11.—The Netherlands guilder stumbled lower today in terms of the dollar after nearly a week's steady rise.

A loss of .07 of a cent in the Netherlands money was interpreted by many foreign exchange experts as merely a "technical" reaction after the recent sharp gains.

Sterling and the Swiss franc were unchanged. The French franc and belga declined narrowly. Most future prices, especially the belga, reversed the week's trend with small drops.

NEW YORK, May 11 .- (AP)-Stocks ambled over a circuitous route in today's market and the majority failed to do much either way.

The list slipped until around midday when some buying support came in and cut initial losses running to a point or so. A number of gains were also posted in the final hour. Prices, however, were well mixed at the close. Again the session was among the Again the session was among the slowest in nearly a year, transfers for the five hours totaling only 400,190 shares against 692,290 the day before. That is was decidedly a two-minded market was indi-cated by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks finishing unchanged at 46.1.

Traders began the day with a tinge of pessimism over reports the administration would not approve tax revisions desired by industry. Subsequent assertions by Secretary Morgenthau that the Treasury would ask congress to remove business deterrents from the tax laws was without much rallying effect on the market.

Some help was afforded by signs of a break in the soft coal tie-up as Chieftain Lewis of the mine workers ordered the signing of contracts with individual operators. Hopes were expressed work would be resumed, at least out-side the Appalachian field, by the end of the week.

Europe's troubles appeared less important as a market factor. On the business side, more talk of sporadic price cutting in auto-mobile steels in the Detroit area served to keep the steels subdued. Fractions to more than a point lower in the curb were Gulf Oil, American Gas & Electric and Creole Petroleum. Electric Bond & Share shaded higher. Turnover of 78,000 shares compared with 110,000 Wednesday.

"Oh, absolutely," was the cheery agreement. "I said you didn't have to worry. You don't. I'm the one." There was a glint in the dark eyes that irritated Glada extremely. Her words must have on loving her, as if that were "To guess that describes it, all right," Gern observed. "Too bad it happens to be true. It was going to come out sooner or later, so maybe it's as well to have it over with. Please don't let it worry you. I know my place . . . assuming I still have one."

"Then—and out of a clear sky—
Mr. Stirling had announced he had fallen in love with her. He inhered to marry her, too. And, worst of all, it brought that same helplessness that had overwhelm ow, here was this young redhaired nobody from nowhere explaining that he also was in love assuming I still have one."

mother insisted upon trotting a secount was squared, it would be a specter dogging her very footster. Then—and out of a clear sky—
Mr. Stirling had announced he had fallen in love with her. He inhered to marry her, too. And, here was this young redhaired nobody from nowhere explaining that he also was in love with her. He didn't put it in so girl. It might be infinitely more respectable to owe it to Mr. Stirrespectable to owe it to Mr. Stirling, but not one whit easier to explain. As a matter of fact, it was more difficult. What possible grounds were there for a young ousiness woman to owe her pastor a whole thousand dollars? And particularly when rumor had it that he was wealthy.

In the days that followed, Glada drifted helplessly into a state of mind comparable with the misery she had endured while attempting to aid Masters. True there was no dead line to meet, no scandal ready to mar the lives of others. But the burden of it amounted to an obsession. Ed Lee was deeply worried about his girl and showed it in many little ways, although he asked no questions. Mary Lee saw in Glada's listless Mary Lee saw in Glada's listless and preoccupied air an exemplification of her pet theories regarding young women who flouted nature and custom by taking over affairs intended for men. She didn't expect anybody to believe her until it was too late, but Glada was exhibiting every indication of was exhibiting every indication of an approaching breakdown.

The latter admitted to herself that she probably was taking the whole matter too seriously, but she couldn't help it. She had discovered that achievement of independence was the underlying sat-isfaction of her business venture. Now, it was gone. Try as she might, there was no escaping the feeling that she was carrying on at somebody else's expense. Until that was changed, there would be no joy in working. Drudgery! It might seem silly to others, but she couldn't go on

And she wouldn't. That was must be done quickly. And sec retly, too.

That decision was a relief, as well as the action that followed. Glada prided herself that she had hit upon a rather clever scheme until late one afternoon when Gern appeared at the office door to ask if he might go into confer-ence with her. She welcomed him readily for this suitor had behaved very circumspectly since that first and only declaration of his sentiments. He seated himself on the elbows on its surface and looked Glada squarely in the eye.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 11.—The Crackers took the rubber game of their series with the Chicks tonight, scoring a 7-to-1 decision with something like ease.

But that was a year ago and the difference in the plate performance of the player in question is noteworthy. Russ Peters has regained that "Washington and Lee swing." He is batting 314 in 25 games.

He seems to be batting equally as well under the sun or the arc lights, And there has been a quality of timeliness to his hitting.

The improvement in Peters' batting is a source of the insistence

Now, Russ Peters was purchased by cagey Connie Mack as a hitter. Athletic scouts had watched him in action at W. & L. He wasn't wearing glasses then and the fact that he didn't hit so well in the majors was laid to his spectacles. It is conceivable that he did have to go through a period of getting used to them. It appeared to make no difference in his fielding, but he seemed to be offering at too many bad balls as a batter. The period of adjustment now seems over.

Peters has more confidence at the plate. He isn't swinging from his shoe tops at high pitches. Rather, he has shown an ability to hit to all fields. Curiously, he has more power hitting to right than any other field. The man thing, however, is that he is hitting consistently. That establishes him far and away as the Southern league's best

GOES FOR DISTANCE.

Almost half of Peters' base hits have been for extra bases. He has socked six doubles, four triples and three home runs out of a total of 27 safeties.

In the extra-base department he is second only to Emil Mailho, the Fiery Frenchman, whose specialty number to date has been doubles. Mailho has 11 doubles, three triples and three home runs to his credit. Peters also has shown a bit of "hot foot" on the bases, having pilfered four. And he has scored 14 runs. He also is second

Marshall Mauldin also has been viewed as a nice, considerate young fellow-good to his family and all that-and withal a nifty center fielder, defensively. But he couldn't hit.

But can't he? Marshall is sporting a .309 batting average. Now, a .309 batting average is nothing for a fellow to rave about, particularly when he is an out-fielder, but really it is considerable of an improvement over, say, .260.

Mauldin also was a hitter once. He led this Southern league with a mark of .376. He was playing for Knoxville then. The magic seemed to leave him when he joined the Crackers. But he is back in there swinging now. And he is tougher than otherwise to get out.

All this means something to the Cracker club. Mauldin and Peters didn't worry the opposition very much last year in an offensive way. And their improvement means that two batting offensive way. TAKE A BOW, JOHN FAN.

Taking cognizance of the spirit and quality of Atlanta baseball fans, Zipp Newman (Birmingham News) says—

"Atlanta is well on its way to a new attendance record. More than 62,000 have seen the Crackers play at Ponce de Leon this spring. Let it not be said the Atlanta fans won't turn out unless their Crackers are leading the league. Most of the 62,000 paid saw the Crackers when they were either scraping bottom or a few steps out of the cellar."

It might be said here that the fans' faith in the Crackers will be rewarded. The current club isn't going to be haunting the second division in the future. That is, provided they can escape such jinxes as Stan Sperry spiking himself. In the last two seasons more things have happened to the Crackers than any other two clubs combined.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(UP)—A supreme court jury doubted Paul Derringer's no-hit story today and socked his legal delivery to the tune of $8,000 damages for injuries suffered by Robert E. Condon three years ago.

Condon, former executive vice president of the American Legion, charged that the Cincinnati Reds' big pitcher had assaulted him in a Philadelphia hotel on the night of June 27, 1936. Condon sued for $25,000.

Buford is expected to retaliate with one of the Moore boys, either Cy or Chief Euel.

Tonight's game, starting at 8:30, is a real attraction.

All proceeds will be diverted into a fund to send the Georgia State Girls' Military band to the New York World's Fair.

Melton faced Buford twice last year. He was defeated, 3-2, on three hits in the first game.

The girls will give an hour concert tonight. They will play from 7:30 to 8:30, when the game will begin.

COTHRAN, PAGE AND CHANDLER IN SEMI-FINALS

Miley Rallies to Defeat Atlanta Girl on

By ROY WHITE.

PONTE VEDRA COUNTRY CLUB, Ponte Vedra, Fla., May 11. Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page Jr., Greensboro, N. C.; Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky.; Jane Cothran, Greenville, S. C., and Mrs. Dan Chandler, Dallas, Texas, Lought their way to the semi-finals of the twenty-eighth annual southern woman's championship golf tournament here this morning.

Mrs. Page, the medalist and former national champion, shot another sub-par round to beat Mrs. Sam Israel, c. New Orleans, 7-5. Miley, the defending champion defeated Dorothy Kirby, former winner from Atlanta, one up on the 18th green. Miss Cothran defeated Mrs. George Wilcox Jr., Miami, Fla., 6-5, and Mrs. Chandler, twice medalist, won an easy 7-6 match from Mrs. E. L. Donaldson, city champion of New Orleans, La.

Mrs. Page and Miley will renew their finalist battle of last year at Birmingham in the top bracket while Mrs. Chandler plays Jane Cothran in the lower bracket semifinals Friday morning.

CHIPS SHORT. A short chip shot at the 18th green robbed Dot Kirby of a chance to compete in the semi-finals Friday. It was a similar shot which enabled Miley to beat Kirby some years ago in the national

Miss Miley's greatest play today was in her sensational recovery shots, two of which came out of difficult lies in sand traps.

At 13, Miley's second shot was in a sand trap some 100 yards from the green and she gambled with a long iron and was on the edg: of the green. Two putts gave GREAT SHOT.

Again at 15, Miley made a sensational blast from a trap to within at four. A great second shot from a difficult lie on the side of a much to my sorrow.

The match was the closest, I bethe advantage Kirby needed to win the hole with a birdie as Miley was off to the right with her second.

If Jane Cothran gets gother match it will be a side by the will be hard to stop. I know, for I have had to put up with her shots in quite a few tournaments. Her opponent, Mrs. Chandler, had little trouble today thing and we would be side by the same but the same the match was lost on the 16th toss up. A fine birdie, following a great second shot to the green, gave Dorothy a birdie at seven and again the match was all square.

Miley went one up again at the with a par as Dorothy's hip shot was short and she missed a fairly short putt to take her second bogey of the round. Miley's drive went into the water at nine and Dorothy squared the match with a par. Dorothy, despite two bogies was one under par against Miley's par round. MILEY RECOVERS.

Kirby made a great shot to the 12th green, with Miley to the right and in front of a sand trap. Miley made a fine chip shot some five feet from the pin and sank the putt for a par and a half as Kir-by's approach putt barely rimmed the cup.

Miley's great iron from the sand trap to the edge of the green saved the 13th hole. It was probably the life saver for Miley for the loss would have meant two down and only five to play. But she wouldn't give up and was again very much in the battle.

Miley squared the match again at 14 with a birdie four, as Dorothy pulled her drive to the edge of the rough and pushed her sec-ond behind a high mound.

Both hit good drives but their seconds found a trap at 15. Dorothy's blast was clear over the green into the rough, but she made a nice recovery some five feet from the pin but it was too late as Miley made a sensational blast two feet from the cup and sank the putt. a habit she has had all week. Kirby was straight down the fairway. Kirby's second was well short of a trap, while Miley was again deadly with her approach some 12 feet from the cup.

Miley's approach putt was three feet past the cup and Dorothy had a chance but her putt ran past the cup. Marion sank the three-footer for victory, though the putt lazily dropped into the cup.

Mrs. A. J. Kaiser, from the West End club, joined Dorothy on the sidelines. She was beaten, 6-5, by Miss Mary Scammell. of Jackson-ville.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 65

insisted that they would rather die than leave Tarzan as prisoner-consort to the cruel Queen of Tohr. "And you—what is your decision?" Ahtea demanded, turning to Dr. Wong Tai. The wily Chinese scientist shrugged suavely.

dulgently. Perry O'Rourke bristled with anger. "The dirty scoundrel! Turning traitor to save his own scabby hide!"

Ahtea's gaze centered on Janette. "You said do not understand how any man can resist Your you would rather die than leave Tarzan—with Majesty's charm and beauty." Ahtea smiled in- me. Very well. So shall it be!" She turned to Mungo. "Take them away, and guard them well—all except Dr. Wong. He will remain. I have need of his wise counsel."

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The route of the captives lay along the top of the city wall, toward some new prison. Tarzan walked beside Ukah, the Rathorian. They whispered together. Presently the ape-man glanced back, caught D'Arnot's eye and nodded slightly. That was a signal for action!

Many Women's Minds Restored Through Work in Insti-tution's Flower Beds; 100 Men With Brains Hope-lessly Decayed Lie Inert in Spotless Room.

(Because of the state's financial condition, it is necessary to reduce the number of inmates of the state hospital at Milledgeville by 2,000. This has led to many controversial statements about the hospital situation. The Constitution sent Lamar Ball to Milledgeville to obtain the facts at the hospital. They are presented to Constitution readers in a series of articles of which this is the third.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Life on the broad acres of the its drawbacks and advantages. It is a bewildering environment of contradictions.

Here are 7,000 men and women snatched away from a world in which they were defeated, strug-gling for control over minds that ebelled against the merciless restrictions of civilization.

Many of them realize where they are, why they are there, what they must do to return to the world to which they were not ad-

Women Tend Plants. Pottering among the impressive beds of sweet peas and roses off to the rear of the main building, are women, many of whom were of violent and destructive impulses before they entered the institution. Here they are content to thrust eeds into the earth, chatter in delight as they see the stems emerge, toil delightedly up and down the rows with small spades and forks; water and nourish and tend the stalks; gurgle happily over the and then, with that inexplicable tenderness of womanhood. lip the flowers and arrange them in bowls to decorate the rooms of those unfortunates who are not permitted outdoors without

But in a few weeks, you will find them out here toiling delight. That's real treatment. They respond miraculously. They grow to love their little sec-tions of the flower beds and accepts them as an aim and purpose in their upset lives. You can watch them as their disordered nerves calm and their minds improve."

Given Clinical Treatments. Meanwhile, of course, they get clinical treatments. Insulin plays an able part in many cases; other drugs have been found efficacious. The soothing qualities of a flower bed, however, are impressive to

Dr. Yarbrough. "Develop hobbies for them," he advises. "Outside, perhaps, they never had time. We let them discover themselves here and we try to keep their mines occupied. Give them something to help them for-get their worries. Many find escape in needlework who never realized before they had a talent for it. It's a treatment. It helps them to adjust themselves. Year after year we send many of them back home merely by helping them to cultivate an interest that' they never knew life held."

Talks to Patients. Groups of men were working around the room and the visitor was unable to tell which were guards and which were patients.

The man looked up, his face wreathed in smiles, his eyes wreathed in smiles, sparkling with recognition. "Oh, fine, doctor-couldn't be

Then, he wagged his head sadly, his face sobered.

"Can't say so much for the res of the world, though! And he went back to his sawing, with a shrug of his shoulders.

"When these are completed," said the doctor, "we shall be able to house some of the patients more comfortably."

Until the more than 2,000 patients are stricken from the rolls and removed to their homes or to their counties, the wards will be overcrowded and many hallways occupied by patients ing on mattresses scattered over the floors. The doctor led the way into

The Last Road.

"Here," he said, "is the last road for everyone you will see in here.' In a large room were more than a hundred beds, each holding the body of an inert man, eyes staring vacantly, features dissolved into

Brains had ceased functioning. They were the "harmless and inoffensive" group, abandoned by their families to the care of the state.

Numbers of them had been men of affairs before they were stricken; many of them had come from families fully capable of caron one bed lay a former law-yer, staring blankly, with nothing but a heart pumping blood through his veins to continue him as a part of the world in which he was once an active and respected figure.

"There is nothing we can do for them," said the doctor. "No one can do anything for them, but clean up after them and feed them as they lay there. They have no control over any of their normal functions. They have no will to be dangerous. They will just lie there like that until they pass on. Have No Control.

"All of us would get that way if we just lived long enough. If a normal man would live to the age of 110 or 115, he would slip into this same stage of decay. Their minds have left the bodies to function for themselves. They have no control. They have no will. They have slipped away from the animal stage into the vegetative stage."

The room was spotless. There was no more odor in the room than there would be in any room where more than 100 normal men would be living. The 800 employes of the state hospital keep the buildings as spotless and as sanitary as an army barracks. And, of those 800 employes, only 39 average more than $100 a month. Many of them live at the hospital, others have homes in Milledgeville. They are at call, like the doctors, 24 hours a day, those 800 normal humans caring for 7,000 afflicted humans with a vigilance and a sympathy that those who come in from the outside world
